Friends and Colleagues

My warmest welcome to the 20th ASAA conference at UWA, Perth. I hope that, like me, you will find the program of talks and papers interesting, enticing, and thought-provoking.

Asian Studies is a very diverse scholarly field. As a meeting of the profession’s peak body, ASAA conferences are necessarily steeped in the history of the field. We hope that the program, while containing this history, also manages to chart some of the transformations that our field of research and teaching is undergoing.

In deciding the conference theme we grappled with the ways in which Asian Studies was changing from an area of individual expertise on particular spaces to a space for comparisons and collaborations. We hoped that the program might generate debates, even controversies!

I trust the conference will progress old debates and start new ones and that we will all finish it with new ideas for collaborations in teaching and research.
